

ATKIN AND THYME

2022 Trends – Multifunctional Heroes

Ideal for homes that are limited on space, or for those who crave extra practicality, these multifunctional heroes from Atkin and Thyme will become the staple pieces.

Picture it; waking up from a cosy slumber and wandering past the beautifully crafted Pigeonhole Mirror as you head to the kitchen for that morning coffee. This elegantly designed mirror is the ultimate space saver and would enhance any interior scheme with its rustic, mango wood charm. The Deco Marble Shelving Unit is not only a vision to behold with its luxury rosewood form and brass detailing, but ties in with another upcoming interior trend for 2022; art deco décor. With room to store essentials as well as showcase accessories, it's the dream 2 in 1.

Like many of Atkin and Thyme's console tables and desks, the new Zen Writing Desk can be used within the office or transform into a dressing table for the bedroom. With its large surface and two generously sized drawers, it can conceal paperwork as well as be a statement piece, with its eastern allure and sustainably sourced mango wood. The Copper Hall stand not only creates a memorable entrance point for family and friends, but provides a neat spot for all on the go items. Inject visual depth into any room with the eco-friendly Newton Sideboard. With its distinctive design, this sideboard doesn't need to be used purely for kitchenware or storage, it can also be utilised a drinks cabinet or entertainment unit.
