Hacked to bits: Rebuilding public trust in journalism after phone hacking

The reputation of British journalism is at rock bottom, and still the Leveson Inquiry is uncovering new allegations of abuses by the national press. How do we move to a system that regulates the media effectively, but doesn't give control to the State?

How can the public hold an independent media to account – and how does the internet change things?

A debate chaired by Donnacha DeLong,
NUJ President

FIRST BRISTOL SHOWING Inside the New York Times PAGE ONE and the Future of Journalism

The acclaimed film about the New York Times, one of the world's most respected newspapers, has not had a public showing in Bristol. IMDb gives it 6.9/10 and says: "Unprecedented access to the New York Times newsroom yields a complex view of the transformation of a media landscape fraught with both peril and opportunity."
